

Innovators

in hospital design

Our founders were deeply invested in the design of medical centers — so much so, they began designing efficient hospitals and care facilities that centered on patients.

Some of our early buildings featured domes, some explored one-story concepts, and yet others embraced “circles of service” — which placed medical personnel in a central work space, so they were never far from any of their patients.

Today, we continue to lead the way with our design: Our newest hospitals and medical offices feature innovative designs and technologies that marry environmental stewardship and healing spaces with patient care and safety — with a healthy dose of aesthetic brilliance thrown in.

> Check out our experiments with “radial design”

Video: The Birth of a Hospital | Kaiser Permanente